

The orange arrow highlights a crucial step - in older children and young people good literacy skills lead to improved spoken language skills: children who read widely have better vocabulary and other language skills.